U. S. Awaiting Israeli Ambassador

Talks to Determine UN Action

By UNITED PRESS

Western diplomats cautiously predicted today that the intensive Middle East negotiations of the past few weeks at Washington and the United Nations will begin to bear fruit next week.

U. S. officials in Washington said Egyptian agreement to allow UN troops into the Gaza Strip may break the Egyptian-Israeli deadlock, although an Israeli source was skeptical about Egyptian "promises."

Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban is scheduled to leave London tonight for Washington talks with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Eban Due Sunday

Eban is en route from Jerusalem with new instructions from Premier David Ben-Gurion's government to bargain further for assurances against a resumption of Egyptian acts of belligerency before Israel pulls its troops completely out of Egypt.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson was reported considering asking the United Nations to call on Israel and Egypt to make "declarations of non-belligerency" to end the deadlock.

The Washington talks presumably will determine how far Israel will go along with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's statement to the UN General Assembly Friday that Egypt would admit the UN Emergency Force into the Gaza Strip and deploy on its northern border when Israeli troops withdraw.

Egypt's Role Undefined

Hammarskjold also said Egypt had agreed that the UN and some of its auxiliary bodies, such as the Relief and Works Administration, could take care of the estimated 217,000 Arab refugees from Palestine in the strip.

Hammarskjold's carefully worded statement did not disclose just what part Egypt wanted to play in the Gaza Strip.

The Israeli Parliament swung strongly behind Premier Ben-Gurion's "no withdrawal" policy Friday but postponed a vote pending the results of Eban's talks in Washington.

The U.S. position on UN sanctions against Israel — asked by six Afro-Asian nations — also was delayed until after the Washington talks.

OIL RISE REASON — Hines Baker, president of Humble Oil, the Houston, Tex., firm which precipitated an industry-wide rise in oil prices, gives the Senate anti-trust subcommittee in Washington his boost reason. Reason: The Suez crisis necessitated the increase because it spotlighted need for discovery of more oil in the U. S.

Leader Revolt Growing

HARRISBURG (UP)—The General Assembly returns next week prepared to move a Republican tax package in the House and cope with an expanding Senate revolt over Gov. George M. Leader's top-level out-of-state appointments.

House Republicans plan to debate their tax package Monday and then pass the series of revenue bills the following day for Senate consideration. The package, plus existing taxes, would bring in $1.5-billion according to GOP figures. The administration placed its needs for the 1957-59 fiscal period $100,000,000 higher.

The package proposing reenactment of temporary tax measures on the books has been altered slightly from the legislation passed by the 1955 session. It calls for elimination of the stamp plan method of collection of the sales tax and holds it steady at 3 per cent for two more years.

House GOP leaders, with a 126-83 majority, expect little difficulty in passage. The stamp plan, tied up in court litigation and never put into operation, is viewed as cumbersome by the Democrats and many Republicans.

The sales tax now on the books would drop to 2 per cent June 1, but the proposed reenactment would hold it at 3 per cent until 1959.

A tax bill outside the General Fund category woud reduce the gasoline tax one penny to five cents on June 1 instead of Sept. 13. However, action on that proposal may be held up because the governor plans to present his Highways Department budget during the week of March 4.

Flood Relief Tax

The extra cent was added by the last Legislature to provide $52,000 000 for emergency flood relief but administration sources indicated Leader may ask for retention of the penny to finance an additional portion of the state's share of the new federal interstate highway program.

Senate Democrats are clashing with the governor over his appointment policies. Focal point of the party revolt is the question of confirmation of William L. Batt Jr., Toledo, O., as secretary of labor and industry.

One Democratic senator, who declined to be identified, said a survey of the 23-member Democratic delegation turned up only six who said they would vote for RECEIVES ANTI-POLIO SHOT — Frank Rischitelli, of Jo Ann drive, Monessen, was among the many youngsters and adults who received anti-polio vaccinations today in the Westmoreland County Medical Society's "polio day" program. Dr. Vincent J. Bolton administered the shot while his wife, who is also his receptionist, aided.

Rain and Snow, Colder Weather Forecast Here

By UNITED PRESS

Temperatures throughout the state were to drop late today and early Sunday morning, bringing a combination of rain and snow, according to the Weather Bureau.

The falling temperatures, due to a low pressure area now in Ohio, will bring the colder weather and rain to Western Pennsylvania late today. Central Pennsylvania tonight and Eastern Pennsylvania Sunday.

As the mercury drops, the rain will change to or become mixed with snow in the southern sections and become mostly snow in the northern portions by tonight.

Sunday will be cloudy and colder over the entire state with snow or snow flurries except in Southeastern Pennsylvania, where rain is forecast.

The outlook for Monday calls for cloudy weather with snow in West and Central Pennsylvania and snow or rain beginning in the eastern part of the state Monday.

Large Crowds Getting Polio Vaccine in Doctors' Offices

The offices of Monessen district doctors participating in the Westmoreland County Medical Society's "polio day" program today were crowded with persons seeking anti-polio vaccine inoculations.

Crowds began forming in the offices as early as an hour before the day's program got underway at 10 a. m. Most doctors said their offices would remain open until 4 o'clock this afternoon. Some said they will remain open longer if it becomes necessary.

The Society is administering vaccine free of charge to all preschool and school children up to the age of 20.

The vaccine for adults is $3 per shot. However, there will be no charge for those who state they are unable to pay the fee.

Large Crowds

A check by The Daily Independent before noon today showed that doctors throughout the county were handling large crowds of patients.

Most doctors said the majority of those being immunized were their "regular" clients. However, they did say there were many "strangers."

A record of each individual's inoculation was made on a triplicate form. The patient gtes a copy, the doctor keeps one and the third is sent to the State Health Department.

The Society has scheduled Saturday, March 23, as the next "polio day" in the county.

Fire alarms were sounded hourly from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. today in Monessen and Rostraver Township to remind residents of "polio day".

Local Man Gets Donora Promotion

A Monessen resident, Robert J. Anderson, has been appointed division engineer in the engineering and maintenance department at the Donora plant of American Steel and Wire Division, U. S Steel, it was announced yesterday by U. F. Corsini, general superintendent.

Anderson joined the plant in 1946 as a draftsman. He was a design draftsman at the time of his appointment.

Anderson, who lives with his wife at 7 Anderson Court, graduated from Monessen High School and Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh. He majored in mechanical engineering.

Syrian Head in Cairo for Arab Summit Meeting

CAIRO (UP)—Syrian President Shukri El Kuwatly arrived today for an Arab "summit conference" that may decide the fate of the Eisenhower Middle East doctrine. The meeting was called to chart new Arab action to get Israeli troops out of the Gaza and Aqaba areas.

Before Kuwatly landed, four silver Egyptian MIGS flashed above Cairo in a tight honor escort formation welcoming the Syrian leader.

Kuwatly was the first Arab leader to arrive for the talks. King Saud of Saudi Arabia and Jordan's King Hussein are expected Sunday. The four-nation conference is scheduled to open officially Monday.

Five Are Dead As Big Plane Lands in Korea

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—A treacherous tide and darkness forced rescue workers to call a temporary halt today in their search for more victims of a U. S. Air Force C124 Globemaster which crashed and burned in the icy Han River estuary.

The official death toll stood at five but 17 other servicemen were missing and feared dead. Thirty-four injured were being treated at hospitals. Another 103 were released after treatment.

The plane and its crew of 10, carrying 149 servicemen to vacations in Japan, crash-landed on a sandspit island in the river Friday night. It burst into flames and burned almost completely.

Air-ground teams of helicopters and 300 soldiers recovered five bodies before a swirling 19-foot tide, carrying huge cakes of ice, partly covered the sandspit where the giant transport crashed.

After a brief resumption of the search today, it was called off again until Sunday.

Pilot Praises Crew

From his hospital bed at Tachikawa Airbase near Tokyo, the pilot, Capt. James Cartwright, 37, of Post Office Box 334, Elkton, Ky., credited his crew and passengers for the fact that there were so many survivors.

"No one man did the job," he said. "It was the whole crew."

He said the whole thing happened three to five minutes after he had taken off from Kimpo Air Base outside Seoul.

"Our number three engine caught fire and started throwing pieces through the fuselage," Cartwright said. "They probably got into the carburetor of our number four engine or throttle linkage, causing loss of power."

He said he started losing control of the plane and knew he could not make it back to Kimpo, so he decided to set down on the sandspit.

He got onto an ice floe 75 to 80 feet from the plane and stayed there for almost an hour before being rescued by a helicoper.

Other survivors had high praise for Cartwright's skillful crash landing.

Hospitals at Ascom City and Kimpo Air Base discharged 100 survivors this morning. They had been rushed to the two hospitals Friday night by helicopter and ambulance during a frenzied evacuation from the tide-threatened sandspit where they were marooned.

Air Force headquarters in Tokyo said the four-engined Globemaster, with a crew of 10, was carrying servicemen to Japan for vacations.

Engine Conks Out

Shortly after taking off from Kimpo Airport, the pilot radioed that his No. 3 engine had failed and he was returning to Kimpo.

Apparently unable to reach the airstrip, he made a beautiful belly-landing four minutes after takeoff on the sandspit island in the Han, 11 miles northwest of Seoul.

An Air Force spokesman said the fuel tanks ruptured when the plane hit and the wreckage burst into flames. Of the 70 persons listed as injured, only one was in serious condition and he was burned.

Students Blamed For Shoplifting Fad Near Sharon

SHARON, Pa. (UP)—Police of suburban Hickoy Twp. blamed a "shoplifting fad" among high school students for "a large part" of approximately $100,000 worth of merchandise missing from stores in a shopping center.

Chief John Whitmore of the township police said 17 girls have admitted "thrill" stealing. Whitmore said his investigation indicated 150 to 200 may be involved in the thefts.

Three of the approximately 20 stores in the Hickoy Plaza Shopping Center have reported losses totaling $79,000 in the past year, Whitmore said. One store alone reported $35,000 worth of merchandise missing.

Whitmore said the student thieves would get money from their parents to purchase items, then steal them and spend the cash. The police chief said he found no evidence of an organized "ring," and that the stealing apparently was regarded by the girls as "a lark."

The widespread pilfering was discovered after a girl was caught Wednesday with two stolen sweaters in her possession. She implicated others in the theft "fad."

Portsmouth in Midst of Another Phone Blackout

PORTSMOUTH, O. (UP) — This city of some 50,000 was in the midst of another telephone service "blackout" today in the wake of a series of cable cuttings.

Police reported Friday night that virtually all phones and radio communications were silenced by the latest cable cuttings in the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. strike, now in its eighth month.

The Communication Workers of America went on strike last July 15, curtailing service in 24 southern and eastern Ohio counties.

Violence during the strike has shut down the exchange here and in nearby Sciotoville and New Boston several times. The last service blackout here ended in mid-December. Emergency service was restored after the area was blacked out for about two months.

Since restoration of service, the company has made frequent reports of cable cuttings which it said gradually cut off service to more and more of the city's 17,000 customers. A spokesman said the Friday night cable slashings brought to 600 the number cut since the beginning of the strike.

No Price Boost For Hair Cuts

Union barbers of the central Monongahela Valley met last night and decided that haircuts will still cost the same — $1.50.

The barbers belong to Journeymen Local 616 which embraces the communities of Charleroi, California, Belle Vernon, North Belle Vernon, Fayette City, Roscoe, Stockdale, Allenport, Monongahela, Donora, Finleyville, Webster and North Charleroi.

Monessen barbers belong to Local 883. A spokesman for the local barbers said Local 883 has no intentions of raising prices this year either.

VIENNA (UP)—The United States will send some 500,000 food packages to Hungary during the next five months, the U.S. Embassy here announced today.

Few GOP County Candidates Announce

Only a corporal's guard of Westmoreland County Republicans turned out last night to pay the traditional homage to Abraham Lincoln — on George Washington's birthday.

Billed as a "Lincoln-Eisenhower Celebration", the affair at the William Penn Tavern, near Delmont, attracted only about 300 persons.

And if the Westmoreland Republicans are going to be a factor in this year's county elections, they will have to develop a lot more steam than was evident last night.

The big problem, according to County Chairman Edwin A. Swink, is going to be to find enough candidates to fill out a ticket to oppose the country's high-riding Democrats.

The GOP, for instance, as yet has turned up nobody willing to run for District Attorney. No candidates for Coroner have appeared, either.

Two candidates for common pleas judge were introduced to last night's gathering. They were Robert A. Rial and Avra N. Pershing, both of Greensburg.

Rial was the Republican candidate for D. A. four years ago, losing to incumbent Democrat Alexander Sculco, of New Kensington, by about 700 votes in a contest marked by wholesale fraud in Sculco's behalf.

Sculco is now one of the Demo-

Webster Lad Hurt In Skating Accident

David England, 18, of Webster, is in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today with a brain concussion suffered in an accident at Riverview skating rink on the Monessen-Belle Vernon road, it was learned today.

The hospital lists his condition as "fair."

The youth reportedly struck his head on a door while attempting to execute a skating trick.

350-year-old Ship Tries Out Sea Legs

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)—A tiny sail-ship whose ancestry dates back 350 years, tries out her sea legs for the first time today, looking like a toy among the mighty warships scattered about the harbor to see her off on her maiden voyage.

The 100-ton Susan Constant II, reproduction of the largest of the three ships which brought the first permanent English settlers to North America in 1607, had a hand-picked crew aboard, anxious to quiet claims that she was not seaworthy.

Those claims came from naval historian Robert Hammond Gibson who wrote in a recent issue of a national sailing magazine that the ship was dangerously top-heavy, may be unmanageable in heavy weather, and is rigged in such a manner as to prevent her sailing up the James River to Jamestown in the face of prevailing downstream winds.

But designer G. C. Fee, chief of the Model Ship Laboratory of the Newport News, Va., Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., discounted Gibson's charges. He reported that 120 tons of cement were loaded aboard the Susan constant for ballast Friday and the ship now rides in the water with her keel more than 10 feet below the water line.

Fee said Gibson examined the ship before ballast, canvas and some rigging had been added and while the ship was riding high in the water.

The Susan Constant was not expected to make a long trip today. Her shakedown cruise was to last for about six hours and with her expected speed only a few knots per hour, she wouldn't be able to get far.

Give Your Home a 'Face Lifting' with Many Varied Sidings

In many a family circle, first thoughts of home improvement will turn, this year, to the matter of "face lifting," with a view to giving the home's exterior a completely new look via one or more of the many new (and old) siding materials now available.

The most common material for resurfacing is wood (Redwood, cedar, Douglas fir and white pine) which presents itself in a variety of siding types.

Most popular is bevel or lap siding, applied horizontally, with the lower edge thicker than the upper. Wide panels (8 and 10 inches) are favored today over the 4-and 6-inch widths seen in older houses. Drop siding, which has a groove cut along one edge is also applied horizontally and lapped.

For Sheltered Areas

Vertical applications include board and batten siding (wide boards with narrow battens covering the joints) and tongue-and-groove paneling, which is especially adaptable to sheltered areas.

Cedar shakes and shingles make an attractive exterior wall, high in insulation value. The cedar shingle single-course exterior has proven extremely popular. If a double-coursed wall is desired, economical cedar shingle undercoursing is laid first. The distinctive grooved or striated cedar shake is then laid directly over the undercoursing, with a resulting rich, deep shadow line, emphasizing the horizontal lines of the house.

Asbestos-cement siding shingles are obtainable in many colors, impregnated into the material, which is very hard and fireproof.

Hardboard, made of heat-and pressure-treated wood fibers, is available in the wide panel horizontal lap siding, applied with aluminum strips, and vertically scored siding, which is applied in large sheets.

Aluminum siding, in various colors, comes in long lengths for application as horizontal lap-siding.

Insulating siding consists of fiber panels and shingles with facing of asphalt and mineral granules, and affords a thrifty approach to house "face lifting."

Plywood siding provides a durable exterior surfacing. It comes in large panels, which facilitate application, and in a variety of patterns.

Thin, light, masonry veneers are entering the resurfacing market in a big way.

Calcium Loss In Softening Not Damaging

Does softening the home water supply rob the body of one of its most-needed minerals, because calcium is removed in the softening process?

No, The Water Conditioning Foundation states.

This line of reasoning has been completely discredited, in the light of modern nutritional knowledge.

More than a gram of a calcium a day is needed by the body to form strong teeth and bones, but water — even in its hardest state — is an unimportant source of the mineral.

Because of the difference in content, one can get the calcium equivalent of 1-½ quarts of water or more from drinking an eight-ounce glass of milk, The Foundation explains.

In addition, milk or its equivalent in the form of cheese or ice cream will provide more calcium than all the hard water one could possibly drink, and in a form to be well utilized for nutritional purposes.

Although soft water is entirely palatable, many persons prefer the taste of hard water.

In this case, it is perfectly simple to install a separate line to carry cold, hard water for drinking purposes, when the rest of the home water supply — both cold and hot — is softened for better living.

Household water softeners may be purchased outright, or rented by the month from a water softening service organization. Prices compare favorably with those of other household appliances.

Mirrors Good As Enhancing Interior Scheme

The simple beauty of pure sparkling plate glass, whether clear or mirrored, can greatly enhance any interior scheme: period modern, or a combination of both.

Mirrors may be used to enlarge the appearance of a room as well as to serve as a grooming medium or they may be placed so as to reflect light into a dull and dreary space such as a stairwell.

Heavy plate or tempered glass shelves offer limitless uses for beautifying the interior while serving a useful purpose. They may be used with glass block separators to form free standing display units; with common plain or painted brick to form knickknack shelves or used with brackets to perform numerous useful decorative services from book cases to room dividers.

Glass tops on furniture provide the surface with a luster that even the finest hand rubbing cannot produce. At the same time the glass serves as a perfect surface protector from burns, stains and other damage from spillage.

Practically all glass additions to a home can be effected without professional help. In most cases all you have to do is make a few simple, straight line measurements and take them to your glass distributor and your needs will be cut to order.

Women Taking Charge of Home Building

Women have taken charge of the nation's home building.

Although they do not show up on each construction job, the U. S. housewive almost certainly dictates every single room and floor plan and every item of storage and built-in throughout the home.

It all dates back to last spring at the so-called Women's Building Congress held in the nation's capital. The women were asked to list their likes and dislikes in modern home design.

The building industry is still staggering under the impact of their suggestions, but being smart men, they have gone to work to revise their entire approach to home design.

The ladies said they wanted less gimcracks, less gadgets, less junk and more quality.

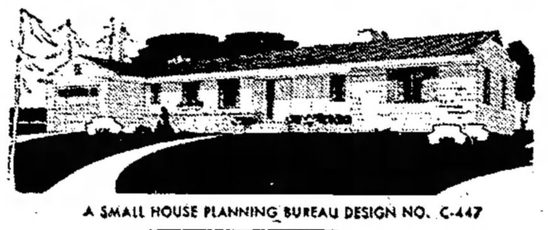
High on the list of their most wanted items in the home was wood. The ladies told the building experts they wanted most of all to live in a home built of wood — from the warmth inspiring exterior siding to the coziest storage-packed nook in the family room. They said they wanted to live with wood in wall paneling, flooring, kitchen cabinets, furniture, siding and framing lumber.

Also, women want larger homes with more living area both inside and outside.

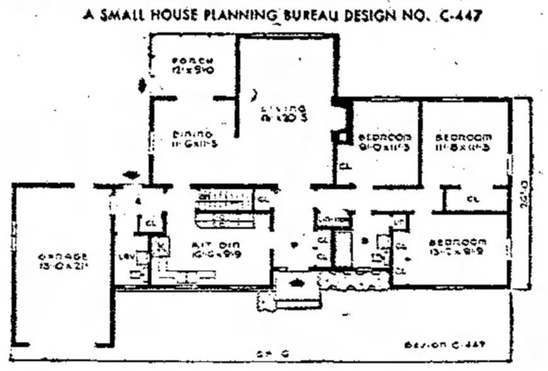
Wood Is Flexible, Natural Material

Man didn't invent wood, but it is a good thing that Nature did.

This sentiment is readily affirmed by the West Coast Lumbermen's Association which reports that without this wonderfully flexible, natural material, from which more than 80 per cent of the nation's homes are constructed, man might still be living in dry caves with a southern exposure.



A SMALL HOUSE PLANNING BUREAU DESIGN NO. C-447



AN EXTRA LARGE vestibule is the key point in this design. The sleeping area has three bedrooms with wardrobe type closets and bathroom. French doors connect the dining room to a screen porch which, along with the large picture window in the living room, takes full advantage of a pleasant yard.

The kitchen features a built-in oven, counter top range and ample space for informal dining.

A lavatory, coat closet and access to the garage are desirable features of the rear entry.

The exterior is highlighted by the use of natural stone and a pleasing combination of vertical and horizontal siding. Floor area is 1443 square feet (excluding garage.)

Steps For Drilling Well

What steps should you follow to get a dependable, adequate and pure well water supply for a home beyond the water mains?

The National Water Well Association suggests the following six-point guide as a help to homeowners planning to install their own water systems:

1. Add up the total amount of water needed daily for all uses, both inside and outside the home. This is important for correct pump sizing.

2. Get as much information as possible about the underground water table in the area where you plan to buy or build.

3. Choose a well drilling contractor with a reputation for bringing in wells that give long years of trouble-free service.

4. Find out what regulations apply locally on such related matters as proper well construction, location, and pump housing.

5. Ask the contractor who drills your well to give you an accurate log of the boring at the time the well is completed. The log should cover depth and thickness of the various layers of drift, rock, shale, and the like encountered during drilling; results of pumping tests; size of well casing and screen; and indicated water yield per hour. You'll need to know the latter, of course, before you select your pump.

6. Have the well chlorinated before use, and always after repairs have been made. Check bacterial content at frequent intervals, to make certain that the well remains safe.

The National Water Well Association reminds homeowners that drilled wells are the safest, because they tap the deepest water sources, where contamination from surface seepage is the least likely to have occurred.

Warns Against Blowtorch to Thaw Out Pipes

A warning against the use of a blowtorch to thaw frozen pipe is sounded by the National Association of Plumbing Contractors.

The danger in using a blowtorch is that it may set fire to woodwork or other combustible material near the pipe. There is also danger of causing the pipe to burst if the water flashes into steam while the ends are closed either by ice or by valves.

The same hazard is present if an electric blanket is used to thaw frozen pipe. Many householders have gotten into trouble by attempting to thaw frozen pipe by burning papers.

The only safe way for an amateur to thaw pipe is by the use of cloths or twels dipped in hot water.

Usually it is best to call on a plumbing contractor to thaw frozen pipe with special electrical equipment he has for this purpose.

A plumbing contractor will inspect pipe for cracks caused by freezing. Serious damage to walls and ceilings may result from cracked piping when the ice starts to thaw.

If you are one of the fortunate ones leaving for a warmer climate, it will pay you to have a plumbing contractor drain the water from your household plumbing system. Draining the water from the plumbing fixtures, traps, water heater, and hot water heating system calls for expert skill and experience.

Low Cost Homes to Become Drug

Low cost homes now receiving top building priority soon will become a drug on the market, housing experts predict.

But they say, houses with glamorous, up-to-date facilities will be at a premium.

Used homes for sale in the future will more than meet the low-priced housing demand. Because of this, cheaper construction will slacken, the experts believe.

An over-abundance of used houses in the years ahead is expected to speed up depreciation rates in the low price range. However, a strong demand for quality homes will allow little or no annual depreciation in the higher price market.

In other words, homes now worth $20,000 might drop in value only one per cent each year while the $5,000 to $10,000 group will lose three per cent or more each year. Houses valued at less than $5,000 are expected to reflect land values only.

The Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association reports three factors are behind this better home trend.

(1) Houses now constructed for $15,000 have better facilities than ever — two bathrooms, for example. In 25 years these house6s will depreciate about 50 per cent to a $7,500 value.

But they'll still offer a far better buy than houses built in 1930 for a comparable $7,500. Therefore, people seeking low-priced homes will tend to look toward this used home market.

(2) At the same time, 1.1 million additional households will be formed each year. Some will buy used homes but others, because of increasing incomes, will hoist their mortgages a couple of notches to obtain better new homes. This will raise new home price levels and bolster the value of used homes in the higher price field.

(3) Poorly constructed houses from the 1930's and early 1940's soon will be all but worthless, prematurely flooding the market with low-priced dwellings.

To compete in this trend, builders must plan for maximum salability by offering added facilities, such as multi-bathrooms. Home owners, at the same time, must modernize their facilities and keep abreast of home style changes, the PFMA points out.

The word blimp dates back to World War I when England built a certain type of small non-rigid airship called B-limp, which became blimp.

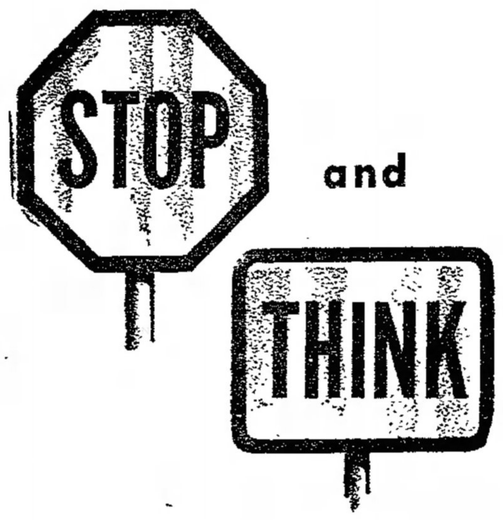
Sermon: "THE KEY to LIFE'S GREATEST MEANING"



you will recognize him by these signs

1 He sells family cemetery lots door to door.
2 He carries beautiful artists drawings of a partially developed park plan cemetery.
3 He will ask you to buy a lot in this cemetery, sight unseen.
4 He will pressure you to buy at once . . . may even offer you a "bargain" price to do so.
5 He will admit—if you ask him—that the cemetery is not completely constructed. He will not be able to tell you when it will be completed.
6 He will admit—if you ask him—that once you buy, you will be FORBIDDEN to express your sentiment in the traditional American way —with a monument of marble or granite.

If you recognize this man at your door, investigate before you buy. Compare the facilities offered by Monessen's already established cemeteries. Consult with those who know . . . a reputable funeral director or monument builder, the officials of an established cemetery, your lawyer or the trust officer of any bank. Selection of your family cemetery lot and monument is a serious and important family decision. Think it through before you buy.

Just Too Crowded

CENTERVILLE, Iowa (UP)—It got terribly crowded in Charles Westmoreland's cell in the county jail, so he got out. There was a leak in his cell, and two plumbers came in to fix it. Then Sheriff A. G. Morlan came in too, and Westmoreland called it a day. He pushed past them, slammed the door behind him and made good his escape.

Vital Drug Is Obtained Via Plea from Ham

NEW YORK (UP)—A vital drug supply was rushed by plane today to a hospital patient in Madrid, Spain, in answer to a plea received on a New Jersey youth's short-wave radio.

The drug, mytelase, is urgently needed to treat a muscular disease that has stricken the patient. The medical term for the disease is myesthenia gravis.

Robert Greenquist, 18, of River Edge, N.J., received the plea from a ham radio operator who said he was calling from Madrid—identified himself as Francisco Gonzales, and gave his call letters as EIGHV.

Greenquist's mother notified New York police headquarters which in turn, contacted officers of the Winthrop Laboratories, manufacturers of the drug.

The officers quickly decided to send several packages of mytelase on the first available plane. The shipment was marked in care of Radio Madrid and also carried Gonzales' name.

Greenquist heard the plea when he picked up a CQ, a general call, asking for a response from W2 district which is the New York-New Jersey area.

Second Missile Out of Control, But Destroyed

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (UP)—The Air Force has disclosed that a second Matador missile went out of control last month and was destroyed in flight.

The disclosure was made as the Air Force called off a search for a similar runaway missile that roared out of New Mexico Thursday.

Maj. Gen. L. I. Davis, commander of Holloman Air Development Center, which had been testing both missiles, said the search was halted because it would cost "more than the missile was worth" — about $100,000 Davis added, however, that the Air Force would continue to check out reports on where the missile might have crashed.

It was believed that the Matador ended its wild flight a few miles on either side of the Colorado-Utah state line, about 300 miles north of New Mexico. However, the Air Force indicated it may have travelled the length of Colorado and then crashed in Wyoming.

So This Is New?

HOLLYWOOD (UP)— Actress Donna Jo Gribble, who has been married 500 times although she's only 21 years old, is going to be married again Sunday—but this time it's real. The heroine of the long-run play "The Drunkard" whose part calls for her to be married once per performance will marry Steve Miller, 21, who also acts in the play.

Warns U. S. of Atomic Attack

Bombs to Fall Here, Red Says

MOSCOW (UP)—The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star said today that if a new world war breaks out atomic, hydrogen "or even more powerful bombs could fall on the American continent."

The article was written by Marshall K. C. Moskalenko in commemoration of Soviet Armed Forces Day.

"In case of American aggression with atomic or hydrogen bombs, similar or even more powerful bombs could fall on the American continent which has been untouched in past wars," he wrote.

He said the United States is trying to create a strong military machine in West Germany to deflect, in case of war, an attack on the American continent.

The newspaper said the development of Soviet heavy industry, science and technology "have made it possible to rearm the army, air force and navy with first class armaments, including atomic and thermonuclear weapons."

Criticizes U. S.

Other Soviet press comment on the anniversary singled out the United States in particular for criticism and emphasized the preparedness of the Red army, navy and air force.

However, there was no elaboration of Red Star's reference to bombs "more powerful" than U.S. hydrogen or atomic weapons.

"The Soviet Army fights only in the just cause of the defense of its Socialist fatherland and its interests, to stop imperialist aggressors and strengthen peace," the Communist Party newspaper Pravda asserted.

Salutes fired in Moscow and other cities marked the 39th anniversary of the Soviet armed forces.

Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov charged in an address to a bemedalled company of marshals, general and admirals that the Western powers are following an aggressive policy aimed at war.

Zhukov said Soviet armed forces were forced to proceed with preparation and training "from the fact that reactionary circles of imperialistic states are continuing their aggressive policy and conducting a course preparative for a new war."

Thanks to the constant attention of the party and the government, he said, the Soviet forces were equipped with the "very latest weapons and fighting technique and possess a staff which has admirably mastered these weapons and the means of applying them to contemporary conditions."

Dock Workers Back On Job; Tugs Are Out

NEW YORK (UP)—East Coast longshoremen return to work today, ending a 10-day strike, but a surprise contract rejection by New York tugboatmen crippled harbor operations in the world's largest port.

There was little hope of an early settlement of the 23-day tugboat strike that has idled 4,000 harbor crewmen and cut off 70 per cent of fuel deliveries to the Greater New York area. Truck and occasional tanker deliveries, coupled with mild weather, forestalled a fuel crisis that had been forecast early in the walkout.

No new negotiations meetings were planned. But Capt. Joseph O'Hare, head of Local 333 of the United Marine Division of the National Maritime Workers, said he would try to arrange for a resumption of negotiations.

Tugboat employers were dumbfounded by the union's 5 to 1 rejection of the six-year contract that had been accepted Thursday by the union's negotiating committee and recommended to the rank-and-file before a vote Friday.

O'Hare and other union leaders said the harbor crewmen objected to the length of the contract which spread improvements over a six-year period.

"They want everything in two years," O'Hare said.

While the tugboat strike took a turn for the worse, labor peace was restored again on piers from Portland, Me., to Norfolk, Va., which had been strikebound since Feb. 12 when 45,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. walked off their jobs in a contract dispute.

Crippled Child Only Death in Fire That Swept Grade School

Larry Adams, crippled from birth, was the only fatality in the flash fire that swept through the Flat Rock Elementary School.

Today authorities praised two woman teachers and the school principal for their heroism in leading the children to safety and possibily preventing the worst school disaster since the New London, Tex. explosion that killed 294 pupils in 1937.

Only one fire truck answered the alarm. A second was at another fire and the only other available truck, a pumper, was useless because there are no hydrants in the area around the school.

Thirty-three teachers and students were burned. Twenty of them required hospitalization, but three were released later.

The Adams boy's heroic teacher, elderly Mrs. Cora Beasley, returned for Larry but was herself trapped and critically burned. She was dragged from the flaming building by Principal A. P. Phillips seconds before the roof collapsed.

Second School Fire

Third-grader David Smith said that when the fire was discovered "we rushed to get our coats and books but Mrs. Besley got us out the door." He said the "smoke was real bad" and authorities believed that young Adams either was unable to keep up with his classmates or became lost in the smoke.

Authorities said that except for the heroic action of Phillips, Mrs. Beasley and Mrs. Beula Osborn, another teacher who remained in the building, the death toll might have been high. Mrs. Osborn escaped with only minor burns.

When the flames died down, firemen searched the smoking ruins, hoping they would find no more bodies. When asked whether there might be more bodies in the ruins, Fire Chief J. Ed Brannock replied, "Oh, God, I hope not. We haven't found any but we can't tell."

The blaze, second major school fire here in 16 days, flared up in the stage curtains of the auditorium and, fed by drafts created by four open doors, quickly engulfed the building.

Cause of the blaze was not determined and Brannock said it may never be known. "God couldn't tell what caused it," he said.

Three Boys Buried Alive by Embankment

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UP) — Three boys enjoying a school holiday met death Friday when a cave they were playfully digging in an embankment collapsed and entombed them under tons of dirt in a freeway construction project.

The crumpled bodies of William David Barron, 7, Steven Wayne Jones, 10, and Larry Joseph Scherer, 13, all of Anaheim, were found at the bottom of the embankment.

The victims along with a fourth boy, Billy Hushman, 11, set out shortly before noon to dig the cave with shovels near a partially built underpass for the freeway. Billy was spared death when he went home to get another shovel.

"I came back but Bill, Steve and Larry weren't around," Billy told police. "I couldn't even find where we had been digging . . . dirt was all around . . . it all looked the same.

"So I thought they had covered up the cave and left."

It wasn't until 5 p.m. that Billy learned his playmates were missing. He told his mother about the cave and along with police returned to the freeway project and pointed to where he believed his playmates had been digging.

Scores of volunteer workers, police and firemen began digging in the area. Hundreds of onlookers were on the top of the embankment when the body of the first victim, young Scherer, was recovered about an hour after the rescue operations began. His mother, who had rushed to the scene, cried, "Oh, my God," and collapsed in hysteria.

The two other bodies were found about 20 minutes later huddled together in what was their small cave.

"One of the boys had his hands clasped over his eyes when we found him," officer Henry Bryant said. "They didn't have a chance when that dirt started to crash down."

Miss Geracimos, recommended for the fellowship by the Lancaster Rotary Club, will study English history and literature at a major university in the British Isles in preparation for a teaching career. She was graduated from Manheim Twp. High School, Neffsville, Pa., in 1953, and expects to receive her BA degree from Wellesly (Mass.) College this June.

confirmation. Batt needs 34 votes.

Leader said he has no intention of withdrawing Batt's name even if the Senate fails to act before March 1 when he will be free from his Ohio job to take over the cabinet post.

The joint House-Senate committee investigation of the state Pardons Board, originally formed with the accent on the David Darcy case, was expected to receive fuel for another line of inquiry.

Herbert Johnson, Erie County district attorney, said this week he will ask the committee to review the commutation of sentences in a 1954 Erie bribe scandal. Johnson said county officials objected to the 16 commutations granted persons convicted in an alleged $20,000,000-a-year gambling operation.

The committee also will dig deeper into charges that "political considerations" influenced the board's recommendation of clemency to Darcy and two accomplices. The three men were sentenced to death for the 1947 slaying of a bystander during a Bucks County holdup. After a lengthy battle through the courts, Leader granted the trio life imprisonment on the recommendation of the board.

Japanese Prime Minister Quits

TOKYO (UP)— Ailing Prime Minister Tanan Ishibashi and his cabinet resigned today after only two months in office.

Acting Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Nobusuke Kishi, 60, was considered certain to be elected Ishibashi's successor Monday.

Ishibashi and leaders of his ruling party met Friday night and decided on the resignation because of the 72-year-old prime minister's health.

Ishibashi had been confined to bed since last month with what originally was announced as a light case of pneumonia. Doctors said Friday he also had heart trouble and would need at least two more months of rest.

He leaves office without ever having made an administrative address to the diet (parliament).

cratic organization's candidates for judge.

Pershing attracted considerable public attention as the special prosecutor who sent five Monessen election board members to jail for cheating in the 1952 election.

The county elects two judges this year.

Other Republican candidates announced last night were William F. Cox, of Scottdale, for Prothonotary, and Thomas M. Huntley, of East Huntingdon Township, and Robert L. Kunkle, of Greensburg, both for Clerk of Courts.

It took a long time to get around to the traditional Lincoln speech last night. The buffet supper was announced for 6:15, but it was 9 o'clock before Congressman James E. Van Zandt, the principal speaker, finally got to the rostrum.

Van Zandt, who had yawned and fidgeted through a seemingly endless round of introductions, in his prepared speech stressed the affinity between Lincoln Republicanism and Eisenhower Republicanism.

Both, he said, stress the role of government, in Lincoln's terms, "to do for a community of people whatever they need to have done but cannot do at all or cannot so well do for themselves. . ."

"In all that the people can individually do as well for themselves," Van Zandt quoted the Civil War President, "government ought not to interfere."

"This," said the veteran congressman, "is basic Republicanism. This is — and always has been — the philosophy of the Republican Party."

Van Zandt said the Eisenhower administration has followed this philosophy and "restored the confidence of America in the free enterprise system".

"It has chopped away at the systems of controls inherited from previous administrations," he said. "It has created a climate in which free enterprise can function at its best to bring us prosperity and full employment."

Turning to state politics, Van Zandt, who has been mentioned as a possible GOP candidate for governor next year, warned that the party will not have President Eisenhower on its ticket in 1958.

"We Republicans will have to row the political boat alone," he said.

He urged party leaders to spend more time and effort at the precinct level "in the education of voters on the objectives and accomplishments of the Republican Party".

Van Zandt pointed out that Republican congressional candidates throughout the nation last November ran over seven million votes behind the President. And he said it is "alarming" to consider that over seven million people who favored Eisenhower "did not even bother to vote for Republican congressional candidates".

But he said "up-to-date application of Lincoln principles" will assure Republican success in Pennsylvania and in the nation.

Swink presided over the program and introduced Van Zandt. The candidates were introduced by Attorney Gene McDonald, of Latrobe, and the county vice chairman, Mrs. Emma McIntire, of Latrobe, introduced a number of visiting women leaders. These included Mrs. Ruth Glenn Pennell, state vice chairman, who spoke briefly.

State National Guard Supports Six-Months' Plan

HARRISBURG (UP) — State Adjutant General Anthony J. Drexel Biddle has announced his support of the Army's controversial plan for six-months' active training for national guardsmen.

'Actually, this six-month training program should have been adopted a year ago for all ages," Biddle said. "Nothing short of this can teach boys how to live in battle and survive."

Biddle, chief administrative officer of the Pennsylvania National Guard, said he believed national guard leaders "should stop this bickering and agree to the Army plan."

"Since all this six-month business began to fill the papers," he said, "I can say honestly I have been delighted because we have shown an increase in enlistments in the PNG in the last two weeks."

Philip Tackles Heavy Schedule Of Official Visits

LONDON (UP)—The Duke of Edinburgh and newly-created prince of the Kingdom today tackled a heavy schedule of official visits which indicated his increasing role in state affairs.

Prince Philip has 20 visits inside Britain already scheduled for March. Then come trips to France and Norway, possibly followed by a visit to the United States this fall.

Britons applauded Queen Elizabeth's action in proclaiming her husband "Prince of the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland" Friday.

Philip has worn the title of prince only unofficially for the last nine years. He gave up his own hereditary title as a prince of the Greek royal family when he took on British citizenship to marry the Queen.

His new status does not mean any increase in power and does not affect the succession of Prince Charles.

Experts today virtually dismissed the possibility the Duke eventually would be named a prince consort, the title given by Victoria to Albert 17 years after their marriage.

Negro Refused Library Book In Virginia

PURCELLVILLE, Va. (UP)—A Negro is threatening to sue the Purcellville public library for refusing to lend him a book on French drapes.

Samuel C. Murray, a 42-year-old upholsterer, charges that the Library refused to permit him to borrow the book on the ground that it would be contrary to "practice."

"I went to the library to get a book on French drapes to use in my business," Murray said.

He said the librarian told him he would have to get permission from the chairman of the library board of trustees. He said the chairman, O. L. Emrick, refused.

"If I didn't pay my taxes they would sell my home," Murray said. "Since I do pay my taxes, I felt I should have the use of the book from the library which is paid for by my taxes."

Legislature in Georgia Praised By Governor

By UNITED PRESS

Gov. Marvin Griffin praised the Georgia legislature today although it failed for a fifth straight time Friday to pass an administration - sponsored bill to outlaw racially mixed baseball in the state.

The bill imposing segregation on all forms of entertainment but aimed mainly at professional baseball bogged down in opposition delaying tactics in a final session in the House.

An administration spokesman predicted the bill will pass next year.

Griffin praised the Legislature for its enactment of "one noteworthy piece of legislation," a resolution calling for impeachment of six members of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The resolution needed only Griffin's signature to go to Washington. No member of the Georgia delegation in the nation's capitol has spoken in favor of it.

Third Class Cities Should Speak up

ONCE AGAIN the Pennsylvania Assembly is to have a chance to correct a long-standing legal discrimination against the citizens of third class cities, of which Monessen is one.

As has been the case at every session for many years, a bill has been introduced which, if enacted, would give the third class cities the right, if their voters so decide in a referendum, to adopt some form of the city manager plan of government. This is a right which the citizens of townships and boroughs have long enjoyed, and it is only through a legal quirk, plus the long neglect of the legislature, that it has been denied to the third class cities.

Politicians traditionally pay lip service to "home rule" for local communities on the sound theory that the people of a community are apt to know better than others what they want and what is best for them. And in the early 1920s an amendment to the state constitution was adopted which was intended to implement this theory so far as the forms of local government in Pennsylvania are concerned.

But while the legislature adopted legislation to give the amendment effect with respect to boroughs and townships, it neglected to do so for the third class cities for reasons which are not now clear but which do not particularly matter. What matters is that succeeding sessions of the Assembly have continually neglected to correct the oversight.

IT IS SAD but true that this neglect has been largely due to the activities of certain political elements in some of the third class cities who do not want their fellow citizens to have the chance even to consider whether or not they want the manager form of government. These elements year after year have been able to sway enough members of the Assembly to prevent the enactment of city manager bills. On one or two occasions in recent years the votes have been close, however.

Now Sen. George B. Stevenson, Republican, of Clinton County, and three other senators, including William J. Lane, Democrat, of Washington County, have introduced another version of this legislation. And Senator Stevenson, who is something of an expert in the Assembly on municipal government problems, has indicated that he will make a serious effort to have the bill approved.

We certainly hope he does so. We hope also that the people of the third class cities will not hesitate to let their representatives and senators know how they feel about this matter. The manager plan is one of the most progressive ideas in municipal government to be developed in this century, and it is spreading rapidly across the country. It is unjust and negligent of the Pennsylvania legislature to continue to deny this state's third class cities the right even to consider whether the manager plan has any advantages for them.

The Double Standard

CAN THERE properly be such a thing as a double standard of conduct among nations? Specifically, is President Eisenhower correct when he says we have a right to expect more from a God-fearing nation like Israel than we expect from a Godless nation like Soviet Russia?

We think the President is definitely right about this. And we think Senator Knowland and others are wrong when they maintain that we must not exert pressure on Israel to get its troops out of Egypt while Russia refuses to get its troops out of Hungary.

Criminal nations like Communist Russia and Fascist Germany always have an advantage over the law-abiding nations in the same way that the highway robber always has the advantage over his victims. The conduct of the lawbreaker is restricted by no considerations except his own immediate objective.

So it has been all through the cold war. The respectable nations, those governed by legal and moral codes and led by men and women of religious faith and conscience, have often been at a disadvantage in the face of unprincipled Communist actions. And in some instances, Korea for example, they have had to pay with life itself for adhering to their codes and their consciences.

But if right is ever to prevail in the world, can it be any other way? Can we possibly establish a world order based on law and justice if we allow the Communists to fix the standards of international conduct?

Certainly there is a double standard — there must be. And we must hope that Israel quickly makes clear which standard it intends to live by.

Merry-Go-Round—

Dulles' Moves On Mideast Confusing

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The public has not been entirely aware of it, but Secretary Dulles's Mideast policies have wavered back and forth so much during the past 10 days that both diplomats and senators are not quite sure just where they are. Here is a chronological record of what has happened in the backstage jockeying over whether to impose or not to impose sanctions.

Mr. Pearson

1. On Monday, Feb. 11 — Secretary Dulles attended what is called a "backgrounder" — a special, private conference with select newsmen, this one at the home of a prominent Washington publisher. Here he outlined American willingness to support the principle of freedom of Israeli shipping through the Gulf of Aqaba. He indicated that the United States would undertake to support this principle if it were violated by Egypt.

2. Also on Monday, Feb. 11, though earlier in the day, Dulles delivered a formal note to the Israeli government reportedly giving it the same general assurances on free shipping.

3. On Tuesday, Feb. 12, the Israeli Embassy, reading the newspapers, noted the "background" story which had come direct from Secretary Dulles, though he was not quoted. These news accounts indicated greater shipping guarantees than the official note handed the Embassy, so Israeli officials promptly reread their note to see if they had interpreted it correctly. Their first reading was correct. The note did not go as far as the promises reported by the press regarding free navigation through Aqaba.

Israeli diplomats thereupon concluded that either the press had misunderstood Dulles, or else Dulles was talking for local American consumption. In other words, he may have promised more freedom of navigation in his background conference with the American press in order to both appease critical congressmen and put Israel in a position where she had to accept his compromise.

4. On Tuesday, Feb. 12, meanwhile, King Saud, returning from a happy meeting in Washington, read with consternation in Madrid that the USA was promising free navigation through Aqaba. It happens that Saudi Arabia owns the little islands at the mouth of Aqaba, also the shore on the east side of the gulf, and the King promptly got off a hot cablegram to his Embassy in Washington. This was later delivered to the White House.

It protested the President's failure to discuss this matter with Saud. Secretary Dulles had discussed the idea of keeping Egyptian troops off these islands in the future, but the King made it clear that he had no idea the United States was going as far as it did. He felt that Eisenhower had been holding out on him.

5. On Wednesday, Feb. 14, the valentine delivered by cable from King Saud began to register at the State Department. It also began to send shivers down the spinal columns of American diplomats. They feared all the Washington missionary work with King Saud might be undone. The Arab world might be antagonized.

6. By Thursday, Feb. 15, State Department officials were putting out the idea that the American support for freedom of navigation through the Gulf of Aqaba would mean nothing more than submission of the matter to the World Court. They had come a long way from the apparent strong promises made by Secretary Dulles four days earlier.

That's why foreign diplomats and senators have been very much at sea as to what the Eisenhower administration does or does not mean to do in the Near East.

Pan Am Eyes Air Route

Appointment of Louis J. Hector of Miami to the Civil Aeronautics Board is expected to tip the scales in favor of Pan American World Airways and its long-time yearning to crash the lucrative domestic market.

Hector, an alleged Democrat who voted twice for Eisenhower and who says he doesn't know anything about aeronautics except "as a paying passenger," was recommended and hand-picked by Sen. George Smathers of Florida, who like Hector was pretty close to being an Eisenhower Democrat in 1952. He refused to make any speeches for Stevenson.

Significantly, Senator Smathers' Miami law firm, Smathers, Thompson and Dyer, is the legal representative for Pan American World Airways. Naturally he has been a consistent friend of Pan Am.

The domestic route Pan American would most like to cut into is the one between New York and Miami. Last year Pan American tried to break into this market, but lost when the CAB voted 3 to 2 to let Northeast Airlines establish an additional New York-Miami route.

Odds are strong in aeronautical circles that once Hector gets on the CAB, the voting will be reversed, and Pan Am will finally get a lush license to operate a domestic air route from New York to Senator Smathers' home town.

Israel's Methods Wrong

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

What Israel is seeking is absolutely justified from every standpoint: (1) The right of innocent passage of its ships through the Egyptian controled Gulf of Aquaba and Straits of Tiran to its own port of Elath: (2) Security from the Fedayeen terrorist raids into Israel from the Gaza Strip.

Mr. Drummond

The method which Israel used to redress these wrongs — invasion in force into non-Israeli territory and into the Sharm el Sheikh tip of Egypt — was certainly not justified, although the provocation was excruciating.

The United Nations is in the midst of a critical and difficult task.

It is difficult because the U. N. is attempting to liquidate an Israeli invasion for which it was partly responsible — responsible in the sense that it had long tolerated and had done nothing effective to correct the Egyptian injustices against Israel which produced the invasion.

The United Nations cannot and should not condone the Israeli invasion.

The United Nations cannot and must not, I think, continue to take a quiescent attitude toward the Egyptian actions which need to be prevented as urgently as the Israeli invasion needs to be ended.

Sanctions Unlikely

If I grasp the realities correctly, there are two things which are not likely to happen.

What Israel most fears is not likely to take place. The United States would be very reluctant to carry out repressive economic sanctions against Israel. The responsibility of both Israel and Egypt for the immediate situation is far too interwoven to justify such action unless applied with equal force to both sides.

What Israel most wants is not going to take place. The United States is not going to "guarantee" — that is, pledge that it will use armed force — to escort Israeli-bound shipping through the Straits of Tiran and the Gulf of Aqaba. Since President Eisenhower proclaimed that America would not "shoot its way through the Suez Canal" in order to protect American shipping, it is plain that he is not going "to shoot" to protect Israeli shipping.

And Congress isn't either. Senator Knowland, Sen. Lyndon Johnson and the others are very outspoken about what they are against. But they are not saying what they are for. It is evident that they are not for "guaranteeing" that Israeli ships will be able to get through the Gulf of Aqaba if Egypt blocks the Straits — as it did before the invasion.

Washington still hopes that Premier Ben-Gurion will finally deem it in Israel's largest interests to terminate the invasion and rely on the United Nations to see that Egypt respects the rights it has violated in the past.

How U. S. Can Help

On the premise that Israel will withdraw its forces, the U. S. is now prepared to exercise "the right of free and innocent passage" with a ship of American registry through the Gulf of Aqaba and to join with others to try to secure its firm recognition by Egypt.

But the U. S. and the U. N. cannot, it seems to me, give effective support to Israel's legitimate ends until Israel puts itself fully in the right. Should Egypt resume its discriminations against Israel — in the Suez, in the Gulf of Aqaba, in the border raids from Gaza — then President Nasser would be fully in the wrong and Israel's friends could conscientiously support her in resisting.

I cannot escape the feeling that Israel's true interests lie in this direction and that Premier Ben-Gurion could easily miscalculate the strength of pro-Israeli sentiment in the United States if he decides to "go it alone." Any attempt to bring "Israel-can't-be-wrong" pressure on the President would almost certainly backfire.

Israel needs American support and in the present circumstances it will, I think, lose it if it refuses to give the U. N. a second chance.

National Affairs—

Jewish Votes Involved

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — Bold events of the next few days probably will determine whether domestic politics in the United States for a generation shall be further frenzied by another angry minority issue.

In this instance, the affected minority would be the large, influential and strategically situated community of American Jews. The American Negro presently is the focal point of bitter political controversy, comparable in many ways with the issue of slavery which brought on the war between the states.

No such war is in prospect, even remotely, regardless of the outcome of the dispute over the social status of Negroes in the United States or the outcome of the Arab-Israeli ruckus in the Middle East.

President Eisenhower and others, however, are fearful the Middle Eastern dispute could contribute substantially toward World War III. That lifts the Israeli issue well out of domestic U.S. politics so far as its over-all significance is concerned.

Barring that grim potential of an early atomic war, however, the international controversy over Middle Eastern boundaries may, in its U.S. ballot box impact be like the impact of the Irish question. The Irish question was a U.S. domestic issue in the era of World War I and some years thereafter.

The question itself was whether and when the British would withdraw from their civil and military control of all or part of Ireland, now Eire. That question was resolved in the 1920s by British withdrawal accompanied and preceded by extraordinary Irish acts of violence against themselves, against the British and against whomsoever might be handy.

But it was resolved. The Irish question then began to diminish as an issue of U.S. domestic politics.

Influenced Elections

United States cities such as Boston, New York and Chicago sheltered vast numbers of Irish Americans whose voting habits more often than not had been as much or more influenced by events in Erin than by events in their home towns.

None with a memory of the bitter anti-British sentiments with which political candidates sought votes in the great Irish-American communities was surprised this month when Mayor Robert F. Wagner Jr., scorned the visiting King Saud of Saudi Arabia and refused him a municipal welcome in New York.

Gov. Averell Harriman, of New York, backed Wagner in that position in all respects and none was surprised by that, either. Whatever the motives of the mayor and of the governor may have been, practical politicians counted their action as likely to hold or win them friends and votes among the very large Jewish community of New York City.

The Cynic's Corner—

"What do you say? Shall I buy it and to blazes with inflation . . . !"

It's a Fact—

Toads of the Bufo marinus species multiply like rabbits and, like goats, eat everything from cigar butts to paper napkins.

The average escalator in a department store travels about 40 feet a minute.

Stones where used in early cannon and were not replaced by metal shot until the 17th century.

Notes and Comment—

Florida's 'St. Pete' Is A National Necessity

By HARRY R. PORE, Jr.

Florida is not one of my customary haunts for a variety of reasons which we need not go into here. But I think if there were not already in existence a place like St. Petersburg, we would have to invent one as a national necessity.

I spent most of last week in St. Pete, as both the natives and visitors call it in real affection. I had not been there since my first visit just ten years ago, and while I could note some changes, one thing has not changed. And that is St. Pete's utter dedication to the business of making old folks by the thousands contented and happy.

"Senior citizens" they call them in St. Pete, and you are not there very long before you realize that the term is more than just a polite euphemism. For whether they are in St. Pete through the grace of the social security system or whether they have a yacht moored in the harbor — and there are plenty of both kinds — old age has no terrors for these people.

St. Pete offers them a kindly climate with unfailing sunshine this time of year. Last week there was some complaining about a "cold snap" after several weeks of uniformly warm weather. But I wore a sport shirt every day and we went swimming every day but one. (Alright, if you want to be technical, the pool was heated.)

Visits 'The Club'

But the sunshine is only the beginning. You should see what they call "The Club". The morning I was there about a hundred shuffleboard courts were in use with players waiting. I watched a game of roque, which is something like croquet only it is played on an elaborately prepared indoor surface with obviously expensive equipment.

"The Club" is world-famous for "bowls", the kind played with an off-center ball which the players roll towards a "jack". I watched the finish of a tournament match in which I'm sure the youngest participant was over 70. But there didn't seem to be an ache or a pain among either players or the spectators.

Then there are facilities for chess and checkers, row after row of boards, and I was told genuine experts are a dime a dozen. The bridge tournaments are very serious affairs, and "The Club" has dances every few evenings.

While I was on the shuffleboard court, a nice-looking gentleman approached and handed me what looked like a campaign card such as the political candidates use. And that's what it was, too. He was running for president of the Shuffleboard Club, and he was running pretty hard.

Both the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees are about to start spring training in St. Pete, and I'm told the ball parks will be well populated every day by folks who will be caring a lot more about Mickey Mantle's batting average than about their own blood pressures.

Intellectual Interests

But it isn't all just fun in St. Pete. There is a tremendous demand for artistic and intellectual stimulation. The Civic Music Association, a sister to the one which we have here, is oversubscribed and has a waiting list without bothering to put on a campaign. Last week the Pittsburgh Symphony played to a capacity house of 2,500. Every day there are lectures, book reviews, discussion forums, travelogues and everything else in that line you can mention. Most of them are free or nearly so.

In the peak of the season the churches all have two or three services to accomodate the worshippers, and some of the nation's best known preachers make annual visits to St. Pete.

The eating is good, too, and there must be plenty of appetite. The lines form outside the more popular places an hour before the regular meal times, and there are prices for pocketbooks of all sizes. A green bench is always handy on the sidewalk if the intake has been a little sumptuous—or even if it hasn't.

All of this just makes the difference between an old person biding his time and a "senior citizen" doing the things he finds interesting and satisfying and never wanting for the companionship of those with similar interests.

As a community where all this is possible, St. Pete performs as useful a function as any city in the land.

Hornet Nest, Once a Bedlam, Now Silent

By JOHN H. DAY

The lonesomest spot in all the countryside, the one which the winter has made most vacant of all, is the thicket corner where hangs the great gray nest of the white-faced hornets. Its door stands hospitably open but it is no longer thronged with burly burghers roaring to and fro on business that cannot wait. While the warm sun of August shone down on it, that entry way knew the jostling bustle of a great swarm of selfless toilers. Now the gray paper shell hangs empty, a ghostly lonesome reminder of the roaring energy and social unity which had gone into its building.

Most people misunderstand the vim and vigor of the hornet, and his near of kin the yellow jacket and the nervous wasp. Universal opinion holds that these fellows are entirely too hasty in getting to the point in any argument. They certainly brook no interference with their right to a home and the bringing up of the family. In deference of these rights they are certainly hasty.

Disturb not the even tenor of his home-building and home-keeping way and the white-faced hornet becomes a most interesting creature. One of his kind used to visit the tent in which I camped one summer and we got to be good neighbors. At first I viewed him with distrust, but he dodged my blow and landed plump on a housefly that was rubbing his forelegs together in congratulatory manner on the tent roof.

The End of Mr. Fly

This fly had without doubt been mingling with germs of superior standing, but his happiness over the success of the event was of brief duration. There came from his wings just one screech of alarm followed by an ominous silence. Then came the deep roar of the hornet's propellers as he rounded the curve through the tent door and gave her full-speed ahead on the home road.

An hour later he was back, had captured another fly almost immediately, and was off. He came again, many times a day, and day after day, until I began to follow his flights with the interest of an old friend. He never bothered me or anyone else. The capture of houseflies was his vocation, and it demanded all his energy and attention.

He used to go bumbling and butting about the tent in a near-sighted excitement that was humorous to behold. He didn't know a fly from a hole in the tent pole, and there was a tack in the ridgepole whose head he captured exultantly and let go in a sort of slow wonder every time he came in. A cloud over the sun delayed him and in wet weather he was never to be seen.

His method with the fly in hand was direct an deffective. The first buzz was followed by the snip-snip of his shear-like jaws. You could hear the sound and see the gauzy wings flutter slowly to the tent floor. If the fly kicked much, his legs went in the same way. Then the hornet took a firmer grip on his prize and was off with him to the nest, where the hapless victim became chewed-up fly soup for hungry hornet larvae.

Climax in August

The climax of the work of the great paper hive in the thicket was reached in August. The new queens had been reared to maturity. The first chill days of autumn brought rain, and the change from bustline life to silence was almost startling. Almost in a day the hive was deserted. The chill of autumn laid the cold hand of death on the busy white-faced workers. Numbed with cold, they died wherever the chill caught them. Only the queens had vitality to withstand the winter.

The gray nest in the thicket, hanging like a jack-o-lantern above the drifted snow, is pathetic in its emptiness. I shiver in a sort of sympathetic loneliness as I pass that way. And then I forget the loneliness as I think of the busy worker who used to come into my tent, and having caught his fly, hung head downward from ridgepole or canvas-edge by one hind foot while all his other feet were busy holding his lamb for the shearing.

Monessen Jayvees Topped Valley Foes

Significantly, the Monessen Junior Varsity basketballers romped over all valley opposition without a scare this season. All four Jayvee setbacks were suffered during the exhibition season . . . Fred Uhlman, the all-around Charleroi athlete who's been basketballing for the Monessen Cro-Ams this year, reports that he'll spend the upcoming baseball campaign at home for a change. Fred, who has toured with several minor league and semi-pro clubs, will pitch for the home town Charleroi Merchants in the Mon Valley League . . . The annual Monessen Sportsmen's Association banquet — always a big production — will be held this year on March 5 in the First Methodist Church. Tickets are now on sale and may be secured through the regular agencies.

A drive to raise funds for Gus Brickner's swimming attempt at the English Channel is now underway. The Charleroi stroker hopes to head for Europe this summer. His trip depends, of course, on how much money is raised by valley supporters. An account has been opened at the First National Bank in Charleroi in charge of cashier C. M. Kennedy. All donations should be directed to that account . . . Incidentally Brickner's manager — sportscaster Bill Richards — assures that a complete list of donations will be kept. If for any reason, Gus doesn't make the Channel try, the money will be returned.

Consider Currie for Jaycee Position

Charleroi's Rab Currie and Centerville's Pete Daley are both being considered as coaches for the annual Pittsburgh Jay-Cee football promotion next August . . . Incidentally Currie has already been picked to help coach the Washington County All-Stars against Fayette County early in August . . . At the school's recent sports banquet, football coach Bap Manzini was presented with a new golf-putter by his appreciative players while basketball boss Jack Flora got a new golf bag . . . Centerville's much-sought football player, Bob Worrell, toured the campus of Virginia University recently and appeared quite impressed.

Workmen are making test borings at the Charleroi High stadium in preparation for a proposed new lighting system . . . Willie Bronson, a member of the Big Five basketball cast, made a two-pointer in a City League playoff game the other night from a sitting position. No kidding! . . . St. Vincent College officials are arranging a holiday basketball tournament next season. Invitations have been extended to St. Francis, Steubenville and Mt. St. Mary's . . . The Sharon School District plans to sue promoters of a professional basketball game for unpaid rental of the high school gym.

Everybody's Going to Philadelphia

During the past few days, we've had occasion to discuss basketball with sports fans from Charleroi, McKeesport, Sharon and Ford City. There's a remarkable similarity of opinion. They all agree that their favorites can't miss winning the WPIAL Tournament and an eventual trip to Philadelphia. All of which prompted McKeesport scribe Jack Kropp to quip: "It's going to be mighty crowded in Philadelphia on March 30." . . . Without knowing what the tourney schedule will be, our guess is that Charleroi, McKeesport, Ford City and Sharon will get to the semi-finals. As we see it, the "hot" team will win. If pinned down at this point, we'd have to select Sharon.

Gypsy Rose Lee Wins Fisherwoman Award

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Gypsy Rose Lee, who is talented no matter how you look at her, today received an award as "Fisherwoman Of The Year" and disclosed (a good word if you know Gypsy) that her favorite fishing is for salmon and muskie.

"I'm thrilled," she said, "to be honored for something with all my clothes on."

"What weight string, er, ah, line, do you prefer?" she was asked.

"I use various weights," was her answer, "and I've been handed so many lines in my day I find a great delight in tossing them out for a change."

Best On Road

You can't accuse Grady Wallace of South Carolina, one of the leaders in the race for national basketball scoring honors, with being a "homer." His average is better on the road than it is at home and his two best efforts were in away games—54 points against Georgia and 45 against North Carolina state.

What's this about football players being muscle - bound meatheads? Dave Middleton, the Detroit Lions' leading pass receiver, is a medical student at Tennessee. And their Bill Glass, 235-pound Baylor guard, is studying for a ministerial career. Considering the "dirty football" charges, the league could use him right now.

First Time Starters

Keep your eye on the first time starters when the U.S. Open is held at Inverness Club, Toledo, Ohio, in June. When the Open was held there in 1950, the Ben Hogans and Sam Sneads of that era were Ted Ray, Harry Vardon, Walter Hagen and Francis Ouimet. Two kids making their first open start were a couple of youngsters named Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen.

Harvie Ward, the two-time National Amateur golf champion, vows that he'll never ask Georgia's Dynamite Goodloe for advice. In one match in 1950, Harvie was eight down when Goodloe slapped him on the back and said: "Things could be tougher, Harv. Why, once I was on the tenth tee and nine down."

"What happened?" Ward asked.

"Oh," Goodloe replied casually, "I shanked the next one!"

Triple-Header at MHS Floor Tonight

Monessen Wins, 41 to 29

MHS Tops Wildcats In Finale

Monessen High's current basketball edition closed the 1956-57 season with an interesting, if not exactly scientific, win over Monongahela last night. The score was 41-29.

Only 987 paying fans turned out for the game at the MHS gym. It was the smallest crowd ever to watch a scholastic tussle at the Greyhound floor.

Monessen took the lead with a minute to play in the first period and never trailed after that. Still, the Hounds never did turn the game into a romp either.

MHS coach Frank Janosik substituted freely throughout the game. Even in the final period when the visitors had pulled to within seven points, Janosik was content to let his undergrads earn experience under pressure.

Thiry Top Scorer

For Monessen the highlight of the game was the 10 point scoring effort of Al Thiry, the 6-3 younster who is only a freshman. Maurice Mathieu also matched that total for the Greyhounds.

For the visitors, Dee Galiffa was top man with 18 points. Galiffa was also superb defensively and was certainly the best player on the floor.

Neither team was exactly sensational in their shooting. The Hounds made 18 of 67 attempts for 9 per cent gunning. Monongahela hit on just nine of 46 tries for 19 per cent accuracy.

However the visitors were pretty good at the foul line, clicking on 11 of 16 tries.

Hounds Lead

The Hounds led throughout the final three period, but the game hardly developed into the anticipated rout. Once in the third period, MHS led by as much as 28-12. However by the end of the frame, the visitors, who never quit trying, had narrowed the gap to 31-24.

That was as close as Monongahela got.

The win gave the Greyhounds a 14-8 record for the season. In league play, Monessen finished with a 9-3 chart.

GET OUT OF MY WAY! — That's what Monessen's John Bogovich seems to be saying as he takes off down-court against Monongahela last night at the MHS gym. Offering Bogovich some opposition is Milt Diaz (13) of the visitors. Looking over Bogovich's shoulder is Dick DiBiaso. Monessen won, 41-29.

Monessen JVs Top Monongahela By 43-26 Score

Rostraver Bows to Derry Twp., 69-63

Rostraver High's basketballers slipped in the final moments last night to drop a 69-63 decision to Derry Twp. at the Lep gym. Derry's Dick Falenski scored no less than 35 points.

The visitors thus finished the season with a 10-12 record in league play. They clinched the Section 10 title last Tuesday.

For three periods, Rostraver looked like a good bet to upset the Derry boys. As a matter of fact, the Lep held on grimly to the lead until the closing minute of play.

Rostraver dashed off to a 12-7 lead in the first period. At intermission, the Leps were in front, 30-24.

Derry Rallies

Derry came back in the second half, though, to steadily shied away at the Lep advantages.

The big star was Falenski, 6-1 Derry ace who made nine field goals and 17 of 22 fouls for a 35 point performance.

For Rostraver W. Allen was high with 20 points.

City Loop Game To Feature Big Cage Attraction

One of the biggest basketball shows of the season will be staged tonight at the Monessen High gym.

On tap will be these three games:

Movie Club vs. Faculty at 7; Viaduct vs. Cro-Ams at 8; and the MHS seniors against the MHS undergrads at 9.

Adult tickets for the triple-header sell for 50 cents. For students, the tab is 25 cents.

The show is being promoted by the Movie Club. All proceeds will be used to purchase traditional Greyhound jackets for MHS senior athletes.

Tonight's opening game — the Movie Club vs. the Faculty — is designed more for laughs than thrills. The Teachers huff and puff but they usually have a hard time keeping up with the Movie Club boys who always bolster their lineup with a couple of footballers.

No Foolishness

There will be no foolishness in the game between the Cro-Ams and Viaduct, though. That tussle will tip-off a three game series to decide the City League championship.

The Cro-Ams are undefeated this season. They have their sights set on the first perfect season in the history of the league.

The challenging Viaduct dribblers loom as a big hurdle. They are the defending champions, having won last year's crown with a rally in the playoffs. Thus the Viaduct boys are trying to make history repeat.

Windup Attraction

The windup attraction will provide fans with a peek into the future. The game should give some line on the strength of next year's Greyhound quint.

The MHS seniors will include Maurice Mathieu, John Bogovich, Carl Crawley and Frank Crisi. They'll have to pick up a fifth member.

The undergrads will start off with Dick DiBiaso and Joe Kurey. Others who are sure to see action include Dan Barton, Al Thiry, Charles Bill, Carl Payne, Joe Karbowsky, and Myron Sepitko.

Starting for the Cro-Ams tonight will be Fred Uhlman, Sam Dominico, Bob Petty, Tony Crisi and Paul Kunsa. The Viaduct regulars will be Bill Mitnick, Mike Young, John Mesher, Dick DiCenzio and Chips DeFelicis.

The Cro-Ams have a 16-0 record for the year. They topped Viaduct twice during regular season play by scores of 44-28 and 52-44. The Viaduct season record is 17-3.

The second game in the City League title series will be played next Friday since no earlier dates are available.

Ferguson Scores 40 as Brownies Beat California

Brownsville High's Grover Ferguson scored 40 points last night to pace a 75-63 win over California in Section 5 play.

Larsen, Kucks Still Refusing Yank Contracts

By UNITED PRESS

Don Larsen and Johnny Kucks, two of the New York Yankees' world series pitching heroes, will officially become holdouts unless they sign Saturday before the world champions begin practicing to bid for their eighth American League pennant in the last nine years.

Kucks, who shut out the Dodgers in the decisive seventh 1956 series game after compiling an 18-9 regular season record, is in camp and may sign today or Sunday. Larsen, who pitched the first perfect game in series history last fall, is scheduled to arrive today to continue his tussle for a salary nearly double the $12,000 he received in 1956.

Art Ditmar and Bobby Shantz, two pitchers the Yankees obtained from the Kansas City Athletics in Tuesday's 13-man deal, arrived in camp Friday. Ditmar signed for an estimated $1,000. Shantz previously had agreed to terms.

Campy in Shape

Roy Campanella, Brooklyn catcher who slumped to .219 last season when his injured right hand hampered him, took his first 1957 swings with the bat Friday and said they indicated good news for himself and the Dodgers.

Infielder Bobby Avila and pitcher Early Wynn, who had a 20-9 record last season, came to terms with the Indians.

At Mesa, Ariz., the Chicago Cubs announced Vito Valentinetti, righthanded relief pitcher, had accepted his contract terms.

Gary Geiger, a pitcher whom the St. Louis Cardinals probably will switch to another position to make more use of his hitting ability, played first base Friday and starred in a squad game at the club's St. Petersburg, Fla., base.

Basilio Stops Saxton With Kayo in Second

Champ Challenges Now for Shot at Middleweight Title

By JACK CUDDY

CLEVELAND (UP) — Carmen Basilio, the snarling tiger man who flattened Johnny Saxton with perhaps the second fastest knockout in welterweight title history Friday night, challenged today for the middleweight crown.

"I want a shot at the winner of the Gene Fullmer-Ray Robinson fight," announced the fiery slugger who staggered Saxton a dozen times and smashed him to the canvas with a booming left hook for a knockout at 2:42 of the second round before 8,514 at Cleveland Arena, in their title "rubber match."

About $48,000 richer for less than six minutes of work, the champion from Chittenango, N.Y., sought "a real big-money fight" outdoors in May with middleweight ruler Fullmer or Sugar Ray, who are slated for a title bout at Chicago Stadium, April 24.

Carmen Pressed Attack

Meanwhile, Carmen was offered a guarantee of $75,000 for a defense of his own 147-pound bonnet against the winner of next Tuesday's fight at Newark, N.J., between Vince Martinez and ex-champ Kid Gavilan.

Craggy-faced Basilio's kayo of streamlined Saxton in their third encounter was not the fastest in welter title history; for Jimmy McLarnin belted out Young Corbett, the third, at 2:37 of the first round on May 30, 1933 at Los Angeles.

Basilio, 29, was snarling and grim-faced as he tore after Saxton at the opening bell. Saxton, 26-year-old New Yorker, had wrested the title from him on a questionable decision at Chicago last March, and lost the title back to him on a ninth-round TKO at Syracuse, N.Y., last September.

"Saxton promised to make a running fight against me last night," the champion explained. "And I know he was out to louse me up—even if he didn't beat me. So I went after him, and kept right on top of him, and caught up with him every time I got the chance. And I put him away in a hurry."

Hooks Do Damage

Carmen's left hooks to body and head did most of the damage in the abbreviated pursuit race; but he threw his previously bruised right fist effectively several times. And the champ said today, "My right hand isn't a bit sore. It stood up okay."

Basilio was so thankful for his impressive victory that he dropped to his knees in mid-ring, while Saxton's handlers were half-carrying Johnny to his corner, and said a two-minute prayer of gratitude.

It was Carmen's 50th victory in 69 bouts and his 24th knockout. He went into the ring favored at 17-5 and it was the most impressive triumph of his career.

Nominate 147 Horses for Added Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (UP)—A total of 147 nominations for the 89th running of the $100,000 Added Belmont Stakes June 15 was announced today, with the best of last season's juveniles and the current stars of winter racing eligible for the third of the triple crown classics.

The Kentucky Derby will be staged at Churchill Downs May 4, followed by the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico May 18.

There are 25 stakes winners on the list, headed by Calumet Farm's Barbizon, the 1956 juvenile champion and Wheatley's Stable Bold Ruler.

Also among the six young horses named by Calumet Farm is Gen. Duke, the colt who upset Bold Ruler in the recent Everglades Stakes at Hialeah Park.

Other nominees who won stakes as two-year-olds last season include Ambehaving, Balaklava 2nd, Beauguerre, Bureaucracy, Cohoes, Federal Hill, Gaelic Gold, Ghan Fleet, Inswept, King Hairan, Melson, Missile, Mister Jive, Pajama Tops, Prince Khaled, Pro Brandy, Roger H., Round Table and Swirling Abbey.

Landy Retires From Competition

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—World champion miler John Landy today announced his retirement from major athletic competition.

"I've had it," gasped Landy after finishing second to Geoff Fleming in an 880-yard club event at Olympic Park.

Landy holds the world record in the mile event with the time of 3:58 minutes set at Turku, Finland, June 21, 1954.

Fleming beat Landy by two yards today. Landy was clocked in 1:58.4 minutes which experts considered satisfactory in that it was only his second race since the Olympics.

But the lanky miler, dripping with perspiration, said he was through with major competition.

"I won't run in major competition again. In fact, I won't run seriously anymore but just have an occasional outing at interclub events," he said.

Atkinson Wins 3,500th Victory

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Ted Atkinson, who parlayed determination and a philosophical outlook into a success story, moved into one of thoroughbred racing's most select circles today.

The 40-year-old reinsman, who was born in Toronto, Canada, hustled home the 3,500th victory of his career in the first race at Hialeah Park Friday to join Sir Gordon Richards, Johnny Longden and Eddie Arcaro as the only jockeys in history to have achieved that many triumphs.

Atkinson, who rode his first winner at Beulah Park in Columbus, Ohio, 19 years ago, reached the milestone when he brought Untimely, a 20 to 1 longshot, home in front to the cheers of a holiday throng of 20,277.

In the number of victories Atkinson has a long way to go to catch the other leaders. Longden leads all riders with 4,998 victories, while Richards had 4,870 when he retired from the saddle. Arcaro has 3,820.

New System to Win at Tracks

BOWIE, Md. (UP)— A racetrack goer tried out a new system at Bowie race track Friday and took home $4,300.

He slipped by several guards and entered a mutuel booth. Then he pressed a hard object against a teller's back and as he pocketed a package of bills he whispered: "Don't holler. I'm taking this."

North Carolina Stops Wallace to Stay Unbeaten

By JOHN GRIFFIN

North Carolina, still unbeaten because it found out how to stop Grady Wallace, today learned the name of the team it may meet in the first round of the NCAA tournament next month—Canisius.

Carolina's Tar Heels, the nation's No. 1 team, held Wallace, the nation's No. 1 scorer, to just 11 points Friday night and rolled to a 75-62 victory over South Carolina at Chapel Hill, N.C. The win gave North Carolina a perfect 22-0 record and moved it within two games of a perfect season.

Canisius, owner of a 17-5 record, was named today to a "member at large" berth in the NCAA tourney.

Gibbon Gets 31

The Golden Griffins from Buffalo, N.Y., were assigned to a first-round tourney game at New York's Madison Square Garden. Their opponent will be either the Southern Conference champion—or the Atlantic Coast conference champion, a title North Carolina is heavily favored to win in the ACC's post-season tourney.

The 11 points tallied by 6-foot-5 Wallace against North Carolina were his lowest total of the season, but he retained the national scoring lead by an eyelash. The Gamecock star's average dropped to 29.57 points per game. Joe Gibbon of Mississippi scored 31 points against Tulane, but stayed in second place with 29.47.

California Drops First

The Pacific Coast Conference race got a shakeup when Washington handed California its first league defeat, 70-57, as soph Doug Smart scored 28 points and Bruno Boin added 20. The loss dropped California into a first-place tie at 10-1 with UCLA, which romped to an 81-62 victory over Oregon, and Washington is right behind at 11-2. The same teams are scheduled against each other tonight.

Southern Methodist can clinch its third straight Southwest Conference title and an NCAA tourney berth tonight by beating Rice, while Kentucky can clinch at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference crown by beating Alabama while Auburn loses to Tennessee.

Sowell, Delany Out to Crack Jinxes Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—Arnie Sowell, the smooth - striding Pittsburgher, and Ron Delany, the Irishman with the short, choppy leg action, are heavy choices to shatter two jinxes tonight at the National Indoor Track and Field championships.

Sowell is favored to win the 1,000-yard run for the third straight year. In the past 37 years, only the late John Borican was able to win this event three straight times.

But the light-footed Sowell, rolling on an indoor victory string of 16, is expected to toy with a field that includes Harry Bright of the New York Pioneer Club and Ike Matza of New York University.

Delany Heavy Favorite

Delany, with 11 straight indoor mile triumphs, defends his title at this distance. He's favored to become the first runner to win the National Indoor Mile twice in a row since Glenn Cunningham pulled the trick in 1938-39.

Delany's clash with Fred Dwyer of East Orange, N. J., and Laszlo Tabori, the self-exiled Hungarian, may produce the fastest mile of the current board campaign.

Delany will crack the meet mark of 4:07.9 set by Wes Santee in 1955 and approach the world indoor record of 4:03.6 held by Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen if pressed hard enough by Dwyer and the Hungarian.

Tom Courtney, former Fordham star and Olympic 800-meter champion, and Charley Jenkins, the Olympic 400-meter champion from Villanova, head the field in the 600-yard run.

Calhoun Celebrates Birthday

Lee Calhoun, the Olympic 110-meter hurdles champion, hopes to celebrate his 24th birthday by winning the 60-yard high hurdles. Milt Campbell, the 218-pound Olympic decathlon champion, figures to provide Calhoun's stiffest opposition.

Ira Murchison of Western Michigan College, with seven straight indoor victories, head sthe 60-yard dash field: Horace Ashenfenter seeks his sixth straight National indoor victories, heads the 60-yard Reavis of Villanova heads the high jump field; Bob Richards, the Olympic pole vault champion, is favored to retain his title in that event; and Parry O'Brien is a heavy choice to win the shot put for the fifth straight year.

Lattner's Knee To Be Examined

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pittsburgh Steeler halfback Johnny Lattner was scheduled to undergo an examination here Monday for a severe knee injury suffered in an Air Force game.

Lattner, former Notre Dame All-American, who has been in service since early 1955, will be discharged from the Air Force at Bolling Field Monday morning. He will be examined by team physician Dr. P. A. Faix at Mercy Hospital Monday afternoon.

Steeler quarterback Jack Scarbath was here Friday for treatment of an injured thumb on his right hand suffered in the victory over the Los Angeles Rams last season. Dr. Faix X-rayed the thumb, which Scarbath said was still bothering him.

Leading Dutch Swimmer Retires

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (UP)—Joke De Korte, for eight years one of the top Dutch mermaids, has decided to drop out of competition. Miss De Korte was considered the world's second best woman backstroke swimmer.

Pitt Invades W. Va. Tonight for Key Game

By UNITED PRESS

The University of Pittsburgh travels to Morgantown, W. Va., tonight in quest of revenge against the West Virginia University Mountaineers for an earlier season defeat on the Panther's home floor.

Tonight's clash, which has been a sellout for weeks, will see two of the district's top basketball players vying for scoring honors in Pitt's Don Hennon and the Mountaineer's Hot Rod Hundley.

The Panthers (13-8) lost to West Virginia (19-4) at the Pitt Field House earlier this season, 89-66. Hennon scored 29 points in that game to 32 for Hundley. The Panthers upset West Virgina on the Mountaineer home floor last winter by 94-77.

In addition to revenge, the Panthers have the added incentive of a post-season game in the offing. Pitt has received feelers from both the NCAA and the NIT. A victory over the Mountaineers would move them into active contention for a bid.

Carnegie Tech also travels to a foreign court tonight when it meets the Titans of Westminister at New Wilmington. Westminster defeated Tech 85-70 at the Skibo gym earlier in the season, but the improving Tartans are rated a chance to upset the Titans tonight.

In other games tonight Washington & Jefferson is at Hiram, Slippery Rock at Fenn, St. Francis plays Marshall at Altoona, Penn State is at Syracuse, Grove City at Fredonia, Gannon at Steubenville and Waynesburg at Frostburg.

In the only district action Friday night Thiel scored an easy 70-58 victory over Allegheny at Greenville, with Bob Heissenbuttel scoring 20 points to lead the Tomcat attack. Jim Newton had 19 for Allegheny.

Penn State staved off a last half rally at Hamilton, N.Y., Friday night to defeat Colgate, 75-74. Ron Rainey scored 22 points for the Lions.

DeSoto Introduces New 345 H. P. Golden Adventurer at Auto Show

You'll certainly get a thrill when you seee that 1957 new DeSoto at Frank's Service Garage, 122 East Donner avenue, DeSoto-Plymouth sales and service in Monessen.

De Soto's completely restyled and re-engineered 1957 Golden Adventurer, successor to the super-powered-for-safety special two-door Fireflite hardtop which sold out in weeks after its introduction last year, was publicly displayed for the first time against the dramatic background of the Chicago Automobile Show.

Queen of the division's glamorous new line, the new Adventurer is the most powerful car — at 345 h. p. — in De Soto's 29-year history, according to L. Irving Woolson, president.

It's featured engine, probably offering today's optimum automotive performance, produces the long sought one horsepower per cubic inch of displacement, it's stated.

The Adventurer's unmatched beauty in styling and other fine features combine with its engine to bring to the public the very ultimate in a top quality American sportstype automobile in the medium price class, according to Mr. Woolson.

Mr. Woolson compares the limited production Adventurer to a sports-car, except for size, because of its ultra-low silhouette, new suspension system and rugged power plant.

"We feel that its sports-car qualities, combined with its large, roomy interior and trunk space, makes it a perfect choice for those who want high - performance along with other advantages," he states.

De Soto's new Torqueflite automatic transmission, which is a torque converter coupled with a three-speed planetary gear box, operated by a dashboard-mounted push-button console control, is standard along with compensating Total-Contact power brakes.

New Torsion-Aire Suspension

Torsion-Aire Ride, a revolutionary new suspension introduced this year by De Soto on all 1957 models, eliminates the need for a special Adventurer suspension. It's a combination of torsion bars and safety-sphere joints on front; longer, wider, outward-mounted springs at the rear; and Oriflow shock absorbers all around, plus a unique anti-brake-dip device and new lower-pressure, wider-tread 14-inch tires. The new suspension is claimed to give a soft, luxurious ride, and at the same time, sports-car roadability, including flatter cornering, easier handling and nose-dive-free stops from high speeds.

Style With A Golden touch

The Adventurer has the same exterior Flightsweep, soaring, canted styling found on DeSoto's other 1957 models, but with its own distinctive exterior colors and trim, plus lush new interior fabrics and appointments.

Gold, combined with black or white, is the theme color inside and out. Four exterior color combinations are offered — gold with white, white with gold, gold with black and black with gold.

Wheel discs completely cover the smaller 14-inch safety-rim wheels and are sunburst-patterned, gold-anodized aluminum. Five striking stainless steel strips run the length of the deck lid. The name "Adventurer" appears in gold script on the rear quarter panels and on the instrument panel, along with a "Forward Look" medallion, also in gold, superimposed on a field of traditional race checks.

Other exterior embellishments, all standard on the Adventurer, include: Dual exhausts (which also help boost performance), dual outside rear view mirrors, dual manually-operated radio antennae (one is mounted on the tip of each soaring tail fin), white sidewall rayon cord tires and dual headlights (allowable in all 48 states).

Interior Also Gold

The Adventurer's exquisite and luxurious interior features a color-keyed tweed seat and back insert fabric in wheat-gold tones. Matching wheat-gold bolsters are of simulated leather vinyl, as in the door panelling. The safety dash pad, which is standard, is covered in a charcoal gray vinyl. A charcoal carpet, with irridescent gold Lurex flecks throughout, covers the floor, front and rear. The deluxe steering wheel rim is white plastic with gold hand grips. All interior metal surfaces are painted wheat-gold.

And it will be compounded of the purest of drugs gathered from the four corners of the world to help you get well in a hurry.

Any physician in Monessen or the Valley who knows about the Haury Pharmacy will tell you this home-owned drug store can be well recommended.

Right now during this cold-weather season we are experiencing, there is always a lot more colds and other Winter ailments. Everyone should take precautions.

It would be adviseable to keep some cold remedies in the home at all times. The Haury Pharmacy can supply you with the best. Take and use them as directed as the first sniffle. If your cold does not improve, Mr. Haury recommends you see your family doctor. Not fool around with it because it could lead to a more serious sickness.

More prescriptions are probably issued by doctors in the Winter than any other season of the year. Be sure to take them to a dependable drug store like the Haury Pharmacy for filling.

A big list of toilet goods, a huge magazine stand, smoker's supplies, a soda fountain and many other items are offered at Haury's for your approval.

John Says:

Poverty is a state of mind —like the feeling you get when your neighbor drives up in his new car.

Natural Gas Discovered on Indian Ground

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A Pittsburgh gas and oil firm said today it has discovered natural gas on the Allegheny Indian Reservation which would be under water if the proposed Kinzua Dam is constructed near Warren, Pa.

J. B. Hurley, president of Devonian Gas & Oil Co, said the gas was found more than a week ago on a section of the reservation about eight miles southwest of Salamanca, N.Y. Devonian, which started drilling operations last November, leased 18 000 acres of the reservation from the Seneca Indian Nation in December, 1955 Hurley said findings indicate natural gas in the section of the reservation that would be affected by Kinzua dam potentially is worth millions of dollars. He said the lease calls for payment of 12½ per cent of the gross income to the Seneca Nation.

Hurley estimated the first well can produce about a half million cubic feet of natural gas a day. He said Devonian will start drilling operations next week about two miles west of the first well. He said six more wells will be drilled in the Salamanca area.

The Kinzua dam above Warren, across the state line from Salamanca, had been proposed as a flood control measure.

Claim Farmers Will Support Price Strike

ALLEGANY, N Y. (UP) —The Tri-State Master Dairy Farmers' Guild says New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania farmers will support a strike to boost milk prices

The guild reported Friday that farmers from Allegany and Cattaraugus Counties in New York and McKean County in Pennsylvania were expected to participate in a price strike sometime next week. The strike deals with sales to the New York City milk market.

Tri-State representative George J. Shaffer of Allegany said "half of Cattaragus County's 2,000 dairymen will join the strike."

The Guild expressed belief that milk supplies to Buffalo may be affected because "it's hard to tell on the road which milk goes where."

The Rev. John W. Dorney of Branchville, N. J., executive director of the one-year-old Guild, said he knows the strike date but "can't disclose it now."

"Since prices have gone lower, I am confident that more than 12,000 in the three states will take part," Rev. Dorney said. "We're not going to deliver milk until we get our cost of production," he said.

The executive director declined the use of the term picketing but said "an effective method of withholding milk" and "economic demonstrations" would be put into operation.

Trumans Visit Florida Spot

KEY WEST, Fla. (UP)—Former President Truman today will visit this vacation spot which he helped make famous and grateful residents prepared a rousing welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Truman planned to motor into town along Truman Avenue, named in his honor during one of 11 visits he made to Key West while president.

Mr. Truman's car will be escorted in a motorcade of state highway patrolmen and county police.

The city's 26,000 inhabitants and hundreds of tourists hoped to get a glimpse of "Harry," whose vacation visits helped transform Key West from a sleepy fishing town to a booming resort.

Big Problem: How to Free a Trapped Cat

MONROE, La. (UP)—Cliff Ferguson, his wife Frankie and their four youngsters were eager for suggestions today about how to get a cat out of their ceiling without damaging their new master bedroom.

Contractor Ennis Sizemore said that "to my certain knowledge the cat has been there 18 days," but Mrs. Ferguson said it seems the meowing at night has been going on longer.

"It's about to drive me crazy," she said. "First we tore open one end of the gable, then the other one. But we couldn't get at him."

Friday Ferguson, a TV-radio repairman, called Sizemore back to cut a hole into the upper wall of a screened porch on the leve of the ceiling of their new deck-top addition to the home.

They have seen the cat — "he's a big yellow one" — but when they get near the hole the cat retreats far back into the ceiling out of their reach.

"We've pushed in two saucers of salmon and milk and he's eaten it all. And then I left some water. Friday night was the first quiet night we've had. But he will won't come out," Mrs. Ferguson said.

Asked why she called the cat "he," Mrs. Ferguson explained that the way he "paces the floor —or ceiling — all night, he must be a he." That and the way he meows. And he's clawed up all the rock wool in his part of the ceiling."

The Fergusons and their children aged 2 to 9 hope that by feeding the cat regularly he will become friendly enough to permit them to grab him when he comes to the hole for his saucer.

But if that does not work, they fear they will have to see Sizemore about removing some more planks.

The Fergusons have been confronted with skeptics who read of the Glendora, Calif., family whose meowing "cat" proved to be a squeaking water meter.

"If ours is a water meter," Mrs. Ferguson said, "it's the first water meter I ever heard answer me when I called."

U. S. Officials Not Allowed in Parts of Berlin

BERLIN (UP)— The U. S. Army said today Soviet guards refused to allow six State Department officials to drive to isolated Berlin from West Germany Friday on grounds their passports were not in order.

The Army said the Russians turned back four men and two women officials despite the protests of a U. S. Army officer stationed at the border crossing point.

The incident occurred at the Marienborn checkpoint on the East-West Germany border when the Americans tried to enter the 110-mile highway through East Germany to Communist-surrounded Berlin.

The guards said the Americans needed a special stamp on their passports identifying them as members or dependents of the U.S. armed forces.

The Americans returned to Hamburg, where they work for the U.S. Consulate.

Rock 'n' Rollers Disrupt Traffic In Times Square

NEW YORK (UP)— Thousands of teen-age rock 'n' roll fans turned Times Square into a bedlam Friday, jamming sidewalks and disrupting traffic in their frantic efforts to see a rock 'n' roll movie and stage show at the Paramount Theater.

More than 150 policemen, some on horseback, were called out to try to control the crowd which began to form at 4 a.m. and by 8 a.m., when the theater opened its doors, had swelled to an estimated 5,000.

Barriers were set up but they failed to keep the teenagers from pouring into Broadway and 43rd Street which eventually had to be closed off to motorists. Two girls received minor leg injuries and scores of others suffered assorted bruises as the crowd surged toward the theater entrance. A glass restaurant door was shattered, as was a window of a ticket seller's box at the theater entrance.

At one point during the afternoon performance, the rhythmic stamping of 2,000 youngsters caused a second balcony to sway. The balcony was ordered evacuated so that fire and building inspectors could inspect it for safety, and then was reopened

Others inside the huge theater danced in the aisles and lobby, jumped up and down in their seats and, in general, caused the greatest commotion in the Paramount's 31-year history.

There are approximately 2,000 rooms in the famous Palace of Versailles.

Your Health—

Keep Rules in Taking Medicine

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Most of you probably have taken medicine of one form or another off and on for years. Maybe a simple cough remedy or maybe one of our newer sulfa drugs.

At any rate, virtually all of you have had quite a bit of experience taking medicine yourself or giving it to your family.

Yet I'll bet you don't know the ten fundamental rules all of you should be thoroughly familiar with before you are safely prepared to handle medicine in your own home.

Here they are in simplified form:

1 — Always read all directions carefully before taking medicine.

2 — Shake liquid medicine thoroughly when the directions so advise.

3 — Don't take medicine originally prescribed or intended for others.

4 — Never increase the dose or take more frequent doses than directed without approval of your physician.

5 — Don't take medicine in the dark. You might accidentally grab the wrong bottle.

6 — Keep the label side of the bottle on top when pouring the medicine. This will keep the label clean and easy for you and your pharmacist to read.

7 — Close the container immediately after taking the medicine. Some medicines become weaker and others stronger if left in an open container.

8 — Don't pour medicine back into the bottle once it has been removed. It might contaminate the entire preparation.

9 — Don't interchange covers or tops of medicine bottles. You might use the wrong medicine by mistake sometime by identifying it by its cover.

10 — Keep all medicine out of the reach of children.

These rules are easy to follow. They really take little effort and they might prevent a serious accident.

Question And Answer

L. F.: What causes cold sores? What can I do about them?

Answer: The exact cause for cold sores, scientifically known as herpes labialis, is not known. They commonly occur following colds and such diseases as pneumonia, malaria or meningitis.

It has been found that one treatment with X-ray will tend to help prevent the recurrence of this condition. However, if the herpes have already formed, the use of such preparations as spirits of camphor or a bland ointment such as Lassar's paste may be helpful.
